MillerKnoll Powers the Future of Design at Fulton Market Design Days 2026

ZEELAND, Mich., June 3, 2026 /PRNewswire/ -- MillerKnoll, Inc. (NASDAQ: MLKN), a global collective of design brands, will take center stage at Fulton Market Design Days 2026 in Chicago, IL, June 8–10, presenting a clear view of the future of design grounded in insight, technology, and craft.

"As one of the pioneering tenants of Fulton Market, we're excited to anchor another Design Days by showcasing innovative solutions for home and workplace environments," said Jeff Stutz, incoming interim CEO of MillerKnoll. "We are introducing new products across our collective of brands, including reinvented cornerstones like our updated Herman Miller Aeron, along with new tools to help organizations adapt as the way we work continues to evolve."

Spanning eight floors and nearly 70,000 square feet across 1100 and 1144 West Fulton Market, the presentation unfolds as a single, connected journey of immersive exhibitions, full-scale environments, and product launches across brands. Together, the experience demonstrates how thoughtfully designed environments support the work that's best done together, driving connection and collaboration across workplace, healthcare, higher education, hospitality, and home environments.

Building on major exhibition moments in New York, London, and Milan, MillerKnoll continues that momentum in Fulton Market. At 1100 West Fulton Market, Craft Work highlights the human skill behind industrial design through portraits by Balazs Gardi across six MillerKnoll facilities. At 1144, Means + Methods explores the tools—past and present—that turn ideas into reality, alongside live demonstrations of MillerKnoll's new Planning AI tool, which allows teams to visualize scenarios and workstyles with greater clarity. In parallel, the Sustainability Spotlight shows how MillerKnoll scales innovation, embedding environmental responsibility into how products throughout the collective are designed, made, and brought to market.

"Customers need their real estate to work harder and do more than ever before, making the positive impact of a well-designed, well-appointed space even more evident," said John Michael, President of North America Contract at MillerKnoll." The MillerKnoll Workplace floor at 1100 West Fulton Market will showcase strategies and environments that demonstrate the powerful combination of problem-solving expertise and thoughtfully designed products, providing organizations with innovative solutions to their space needs for today and tomorrow."

Also at Design Days, MillerKnoll will introduce a wide range of product launches across its portfolio, spanning infrastructure, systems, iconic seating, and material innovation. Presented together, they reveal how design advances when products are created in conversation with one another.
