

Colebrook Bosson Saunders Launches New eBook Showcasing Its Purpose, Design Legacy, and Vision for the Future

LONDON, August 7, 2025 — What drives a design company to keep evolving with the way we work? Colebrook Bosson Saunders invites you to find out in their newly launched eBook.

From their earliest innovations such as Gemini, the world's first adjustable monitor arm created in partnership with George Sowden and Olivetti, CBS has always had people and their ergonomic well-being at the center of their designs. This eBook traces that journey, revealing the ideas and moments that shaped the brand—from its humble beginnings to global expansion, to its impact within the MillerKnoll collective.

Readers will discover how iconic products like Wishbone and Flo revolutionized ergonomics in the workplace, and how CBS built lasting industry partnerships while pushing for more intuitive, sustainable and ergonomic workspaces.
